CERVICAL MUCUS

There are different types of cervical mucus changing during the month and related to fertility. One of them is a more elastic type of mucus (white egg raw) that allows sperm entering the uterus. On the other hand, there is another type of more pasty mucus that makes it difficult to enter. We can observe that there are days of the month when mucus is more elastic, others more pasty and others in which mucus does not appear. Watching and touching cervical mucus is a good way to increase the menstrual cycle self-knowledge.
